NOTES FROM THE CHILDREN'S MINISTRY

We celebrated Scott's 11th birthday last week with a few of his friends from school. The kids all dressed in their pajamas and went bowling. Isn't it great to be a kid and wear your pajamas out and have a party!

What struck me was one boy was very reluctant to wear his pajamas. Not because he would be embarrassed to wear them to the bowling alley, but he was afraid we were playing a trick on him and that he would be the only one wearing pajamas. How sad that was to me that he didn't have faith in his friends. They have never played a trick on him or knowingly embarrassed him before.

I began to ask, "what makes our children not trust"? Then it came to me, it is us. They see many of the adults around them being untrusting. We have conversations in front of our children about us not trusting the government, schools, elected officials, church, friends, family and maybe even our spouses. Do they even get a chance to see us in complete trust of our Heavenly Father? Do they get to see us submit in total obedience without holding on to some control of the situation?

Are we living our life trusting in God? Do we live a life trustworthy?

God has never embarrassed or disappointed us. He has never been unfaithful. What he says He does. So, why are we still untrusting?

FEED THE CHILDREN SCHEDULE FOR OCTOBER
Adult 4 Sunday School Class

Ethan had no idea of the challenges and blessings that awaited him as he boarded his plane for a semester of service in Brazil. As part of IMB's new HANDS ON initiative, Ethan and some 130 other college students are spending their semester overseas sharing Christ with the lost. These young adults are getting hands on in their commitment to Christ. They are facing the challenges seen by career missionaries, challenges that are symptoms of the world's real problem—millions of people without a relationship with God through Jesus Christ. How will millions be reached? Through the work of student laborers, the lost are hearing about the hope found only in Jesus Christ.

HANDS ON Missionaries are scattering out across the world, walking alongside career missionaries to learn what the life of a missionary is really like and considering if God is calling them to give their life to career missionary service. An East Asian student, led to Christ by a young HANDS ON missionary, shared about his new found faith, "This is amazing. This is better than giving people money. This is giving people life!"

Pray diligently and ask the Father to send out more HANDS ON laborers into the harvest field.

PLANNING MEETING FOR
